AT THE ACADEMY.

Coming direct from a most successful run of over 100 nights at the Criterion Theatre. New York city, complete with all its original equipage, scenery, costumes, accourtements, accessories, music, etc., George W. Cable's "The Cavaller" to be at the Academy to-night, to-morrow, matinee and night, is an attraction that is worthy of more than passing mention. "The Cavaller" is a pluy of the Civil War with the unusual feature that when it treats of the comflet it does so with Southern sentiment. The story deals with the fortunes of a lovely Southern girl, who, on her wedding day, discovers that her hushand is a spy in the pay of the North, and she straightway repulses him with horror, although she carnot summon sufficient courage to denounce thim and thus secure his instant execution. The wedding and the discovery are the subjects of the first act. In the sec-

Wake Forest won the debaters' cup from Richmund College last night in a spiendid contest. The mantle of the victorious Carolina University fell upon their colleagues of Wake Forest, who now carry lack the loving cup given by the Chamber of Commerce of Raleight to the college furnishing the best debaters.

When the debates had concluded on the question, "Resolved, That deportation offers the best solution of the Negro Problem in the United States," the committee, consisting of Judge Edmund Waddill, Dr. Russell Cecil and Dr. J. Allison Hodges, retired. Soon they returned with the following written decision:

"The committee unanimously concludes that, since the determining features of the debate should be based upon three points, 'composition, delivery and argument, as agreed upon by the contestants, that the affirmative have won in the first two requirements, and are, therefore, entitled to the award."

Those supporting the affirmative we see Messrs, J. M. Whisnann and I. N. Lofti, of Wake Forest, while Richmond College was ropiesented by Mesrre, D. M. Simmons and R. Holman Willis.

Of course, the committee had to decide in favor of some one, and while Wake Forest takes the cup, which she lost to Richmond College's representatives did not allow its bannear to fall near the dust.

The exercises were held in the College. The exercises were held in the College.
